Career Summary

Nicholas DePaolera's deep experience in both the brokerage and development sectors provides him with a unique lens to fully understand commercial real estate transactions and investment life cycles.

Nicholas is one of a select group of advisors holding the ARGUS-Enterprise certification. This software enables Nicholas and his team to accurately project the performance of their clients' commercial real estate assets and portfolios throughout the investment life cycle. Additionally, Nicholas is currently pursuing a Certified Commercial Investment Membership (CCIM), a designation that further proves his expertise in financial, market, and investment analysis.

Education

Rutgers University, New Brunswick, NJ – BS

Rutgers Men's Division I Lacrosse Player

Named to the Big East All-Academic Team, Earned 'The Big East Player-of-the-Week' on multiple occasions, Awarded the Alfred Sasser Trophy on multiple occasions

Background & Experience

In addition to his work as an advisor with NAI James E. Hanson, Nicholas is a co-founder of D4 Properties, LLC ("D4"). D4 is a family owned full-service commercial real estate investment manager, developer and operator that targets value add opportunities in suburban markets throughout northern New Jersey. Nicholas' responsibilities with D4 include acquisitions/dispositions, underwriting and business development.

Prior to joining NAI James E. Hanson and co-founding D4 Properties LLC, Nicholas served as a Project Manager for Transwestern's Construction Management Department. There, he worked alongside the Director of Construction Management focusing on multi-million-dollar redevelopment/development projects in all asset classes.

Nicholas' responsibilities included, cost estimating, bid-leveling, scheduling (permitting, inspections, final C.O. documentation) and site supervision all through the construction process.
